This is a report on what we know, today, about the Conkey family of Pelham, Massachusetts. The Conkeys were one of the founding families of Pelham, in 1738, and were the largest surname in town history. The last Conkey left Pelham in the 1860s, although a branch still lives “next door” in nearby Belchertown, Massachusetts. Conkeys served in all aspects of town government as well as in every American war from Pelham through 1812 and were prominent during Shays’ Rebellion, which was centered in Pelham, in 1786-87. This report is not meant to be the last word on the family, but merely the basis of future research.

Entries are primary sources, when known, or are the best secondary sources available. Assessing these sources and exploring gaps in the record will only help to build a more exacting documentary record of this family for future generations.

This report lists known Conkey descendants of Alexander Conkey [ca. 1678-1759]. There are loose ends. The following Pelham Conkey individuals and families have left some record in Pelham, but have not yet been tied to Alexander Conkey (contact author for more information):

Alexander Conkey, husband of Eleanor McConnell Conkey [d. 1808]
Eunice Conkey Wiley
Isaac Conkey [d. 1810] and Rebecca Maklem Conkey [1754-1796]
Jemima Conkey Cutler [1770-1807]
Jacob Conkey
James Conkey [b. ca. 1723]
Joab Conkey
Margaret Conkey Getty
Martha Conkey [ca. 1796-1803]
Mary Conkey Abercrombie
Rebecca Conkey Thompson
Rebecca Conkey Peebles
Robert Conkey [ca. 1763-1826]
Sarah Conkey Forbes

Descendants of Alexander Conkey

Generation No. 1

1. ALEXANDER<sup>1</sup> CONKEY was born Abt. 1678<sup>1,2</sup>, and died December 03, 1759 in Pelham, Massachusetts<sup>3</sup>. He married MARGARET THURSTON<sup>4</sup>. She was born Abt. 1681<sup>5</sup>, and died November 13, 1756 in Pelham, Massachusetts<sup>6</sup>.

Notes for ALEXANDER CONKEY:

Presumably born "Alexander McConkey" in Scotland or Northern Ireland, Alexander was progenitor of the Conkey family ["Mc" dropped in America] of Pelham, Massachusetts. Alexander is assumed to have been part of the Scotch-Irish migration from Northern Ireland which arrived in Boston August 4, 1718 on board the "five ships". As with many of the Scotch-Irish, Alexander resided in Worcester, Massachusetts for about twenty years before the new town of Pelham was founded in 1738 [incorporated 1743]. Information on the Scotch-Irish migration may be found in Charles Knowles Bolton, "Scotch Irish Pioneers in Ulster and America," [Baltimore: Genealogical Publishing Co., 1986; reprint of 1910 edition].

Alexander Conkey was an Original Proprietor of the town of Pelham, Massachusetts.

Alexander Conkey lived at Home Lot No. 55 in Pelham, Massachusetts. His farm was located along Pelham Hollow Road in what is now Gate 11 of the Quabbin Reservoir. The most likely location of Alexander's house is the former Algenon Sidney Bailey [1815-1865] site, shown as the "S. Bailey" site on the 1860 Walling map of Pelham. A cellar hole remains at this site in the Quabbin woods today.

Notes for WILLIAM CONKEY:

William Conkey ran "Conkey's Tavern" in Pelham Hollow, Pelham, Massachusetts, from 1758 until his death in 1788. Conkey's Tavern, located about half a mile from the farm of Daniel Shays [1747-1825], was a center of Shays' Rebellion [1786-87], a region-wide agrarian uprising against state government which many historians cite as having accelerated the movement towards the establishment of the United States Constitution. The tavern was burned in December, 1883. A permanent Conkey's Tavern exhibit was established at the American Museum in Britain at Claverton Manor, Bath, England, in the 1960s. The Pelham, Massachusetts Historical Society Museum also features items from Conkey's Tavern.
